

Julie Froud is Professor of Financial Innovation and Karel Williams is Professor of Accounting and Political Economy in the Centre for Research in Socio-Cultural change (cresc.ac.uk) at the Alliance Manchester Business School, University of Manchester. Their academic work includes a classic study of the financial crisis ('After the Great Complacency', OUP 2011) and they reach non-academic audiences through CRESC Public Interest Reports on topics such as railways and meat supply, and through short books in the 'Manchester Capitalism' series. Their current publications include a recent book 'What a Waste' on government outsourcing, and a Public Interest Report on residential adult care, 'Where does the Money go?'

Sukhdev Johal is Professor of Accounting & Strategy at Queen Mary University of London. His current research interests include critical research on UK finance, how to adapt social and economic statistics to understand employment and wealth changes in the UK, how local authorities can adapt local CSR policies to promote economic democracy and local supply chains. He also has a long standing interest in financialization and its impact on business models with the most recent publication on the Apple Business Model. He is a long time research collaborator with the CRESC research team. Recent co-authored books include 'After the Great Complacency' (2011), 'Financialization at Work' (2008) and 'Financialization and Strategy' (2006). Alongside academic publishing are public interest reports on public policy issues such as UK rail privatization, an alternative report on UK banking reform, regional growth disparities. All these reports received extensive publicity in the broadsheet press.

John Tomaney is Professor of Urban and Regional Planning in the Bartlett School of Planning, University College London. Previously he was Henry Daysh Professor of Regional Development and Director of the Centre for Urban and Regional Development Studies (CURDS), Newcastle University. He has held visiting appointments in the Department of Geography and Environmental Sciences at Monash University, Melbourne; Faculty of the Built Environment at the University of New South Wales, Sydney; CURDS, Newcastle University; Manchester Business School and University College Dublin and is an Fellow of the Academy of Social Science (UK) and the Regional Australia Institute. He was educated at the London School of Economics, University of Sussex and University of Newcastle upon Tyne.

He has published over 100 books and articles on questions of local and regional development including 'Local and Regional Development' (Routledge, 2006) and 'Handbook of Local and Regional Development' (Routledge 2011) co-authored with Andy Pike and Andrés Rodríguez-Pose. He has undertaken numerous research projects in the UK and elsewhere. Among the organisations for which he has conducted research are: UK Research Councils, government departments in the UK and elsewhere, the European Commission, the OECD and local and regional development agencies and private sector and voluntary organisations and think tanks in the UK and abroad. He has given evidence to Royal Commissions and Parliamentary Committees in the UK. In addition, he is a regular commentator in the UK media on matters of local and regional development.